DESCRIPTION

Goji is a large sprawling shrub with long canes that produce brilliant purple flowers along their length in early summer. Their main attribute is their nutrient-rich red fruit, touted for their health boosting properties. Fruits are sweet and may be eaten fresh, frozen or dried.

Sweet Lifeberry™ has extra sweet fruit and a trailing, mounded form. For ease of harvest, several canes may be bundled together and staked. The fruit will sweeten with maturity and should be harvested before the first frost.

Grow Goji in full sun to light shade, providing supplemental watering during drought. Plant in large containers or in the home garden or orchard.
